Looking ahead successfully with our M/Enterprise Information Management Potential Analysis

Business is developing and changing every time. Business grows, new entities and products arise. Concurrently this progress creates new challenges for you: new processes have to be formed, new system environments will be implemented, new ways of communication are established and employees, IT and locations get in connect, sometimes worldwide. But how does the exchange of information between human and technology takes places? Do you know the business process and information chain as well as the communication line? Do you have an intelligent and secure information management implemented? Are you using the huge potential resulting from that information management?

MERENTIS Consult GmbH specially evolved for these posing of questions an analysis method – M/Enterprise Information Management Potential Analysis. This tried and tested concept uses three steps for analysis and leads to a result roadmap for optimized information allocation. So we make a guideline available to you for an effective and added value orientated introduction of an ECM platform, e.g. Microsoft SharePoint.

Understanding Targets

We are focussed on your business goals and interests. In the first step we consider with your business methods and controvert your management goals and the IT strategy. Collaboratelve we define your expectations and realistic levels of ambition for the potential analysis.

Process Analysis

In the second step we will analyse the structures, processes, the environment and expenses of single working steps as well as entire work streams with specially developed analysis templates.

We will conduct surveys and interviews with your employees at their working places leading to a clear view onto your business processes from inside.

Result Assessments

The results of our analysis accomplish a transparent overview over the influences for information processing and work streams inside your company.

Leading from our result template you will receive an InfoFlowMap, a process lists and an overview over your used information objects.

You will gain an IS-State of your experienced business processes which can be adduced for an EIM optimization.

Leading Roadmap

The conclusion of our analysis is the illustration of a roadmap which shows the steps to do prioritized by the defined expectations and management targets.

Additionally the roadmap is completed by a chronological concept for implementation of each single step being required for a successful integration of an ECM platform.

After the accomplishment of a potential analysis we will support you with the implementation of the solution steps within the roadmap. We will define the selection of a platform, sizing and adjustments of the existing environment. Furthermore we determine a scaling concept related to the wanted magnitude.

Our specialists will consult you in the entire process of integration and ensures the quality management of each single solution step before going live.

Consequently MERENTIS Consult GmbH warrants a holistic and methodic implementation of ECM environments.
